The Students of NUSN

NUSU though located in Khartoum- Sudan, has students from other continents especially African and Arab students as well as other nationalities. Most of student are below 20 years of age, but some of them are mature- students. The majority of the students are females. Some of the students may have minor or major physical disability. The students also have different beliefs. The staff -especially new ones- met with this diversity of learners should take account of all these issues while teaching. They should pay particular consideration to those who need extra help. The policy of NUSU is that there is no discrimination between students on any grounds. The students who need extra help have the right to receive such help as a basic service not as a charity. NUSU would take serious steps against those who practice any sort of discrimination or fail to give appropriate consideration to the background of the students (pls. see NUSU Policies and Procedures of Non-Discrimination Values).

SALARY SCALE AND BENEFITS

SALARY: A broad-based salary scale [see HR] is published as a basis of relative categorization between various staff grades. Within the category there are variations based on the individual merits and job market. Certain positions are difficult to fill up, special arrangements to boost one particular person's salary by one or many of many allowances may be practiced. Annual incremental progression is a percentage stated in the national laws. Incentives given at the end of each year vary depending on special appraisal, valuing essentially the effort made by a staff member in taking more teaching load, producing quality research, course and evaluation coordination, promoting e-learning, supervision of students, announcing for and using office hours, internationalization of the institution, professionalism and excellence in a particular area, across specializations, PROMOTIONS: Movement up or promotion along the academic ladder is governed by a national document, issued by the Ministry of Higher Education. NUSU followed these guidelines, but recently published its own. They are comparable to the national and to international criteria of promotions. In all, research is the main requirement.

BENEFITS: A full-time staff member has the right to be exempted from 40% of annual University fees for his spouse and/or children

The after-service benefits are governed by the national Labor Law [HRM- EX- 04] which describes the legal obligations of the institutions and workers, and the Labor Courts settle all disputes, not mutually agreed upon by the administration and employee or ex-employee.

HEALTH CARE: There are packages of Health Insurance service, for individuals and their families. The staff members' health is the responsibility of the university, and all staff members will be treated free of charge if they seek treatment in the University hospital, except for tertiary esthetic or dental care. If a member has chosen a consultation, or insurance premium, outside the recommendations of NUSU, still an application may be filed and NUSU will contribute to treatment with utmost cooperation, after verification of the documents.

JOB RESPONSIBILITIES

The responsibilities of each job are stated in the job description documents [HR/JD/01 to HR/JD/33] and each member of staff should learn that to detail. No excuse will be accepted in missing any item. A number of guidelines in this respect are important: (1) NUSU is committed to clients who include guardians and students and their needs rank very high in the priorities, (2) a staff member who is committed to any other institution, or has family obligations, and would like to have a more flexible working time hours. This may be arranged on mutual agreement with the necessary consideration of benefits and remunerations, (3) Each teaching member has the responsibility of designing a LESSON PLAN (SAA-FR-15) that describes the details of the sequence of activities in the teaching session, (4) part timers are treated on hours' arrangements with clear condition that no payments are done before completing the mission, (5) in the first month of teaching, your classroom will be observed by a senior member of your faculty, feedback advice will be given. Frequent CLASSROOM OBSERVATION sessions [SAA-FR-14] will be indicated along your teaching career. You may also be involved in observing your juniors and colleagues and giving feedback (junior and peer observation), (6) the academic responsibilities towards the reference and accreditation authorities requires a teaching schedule, that allows regular holidays to be in certain weeks of the year, exceptions will be considered, but there is no legal rights for a staff member to chose the time of their holidays, when many duties are pending, (7) the non-positive effects of the employee on the quality of the service is always considered and valuations and appraisal are important components limiting the continuity of the employee.

Unless otherwise stated or exempted, staff members take their annual leave in June as mandatory. If the staff responsibilities allow, a staff member can take her/his annual leave anytime during the year. The appropriate forms for leave have to be filled up. A staff member should not start holidays before being notified by the exact dates of his/he leave. A leave to be spent outside Sudan has to be stated explicitly and approved accordingly.

You may need to look at the ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE [HR/Org Chart Issue/Rev 002/001] to remember the various levels of university management. You may wish to act, or be elected, as a member of one of the university committees- see COMMITTEE STRUCTURE [UC/Committee Chart Issue/Rev 001/001]. Please feel free to suggest any changes in the formation and functions of these committees.

Along the way of developing scholarship NUSU has published a policy on PLAGIARISM and enforced it on students' work very strictly, This has to be observed by all staff.

SUPPORT AND COOPERATION

NUSU supports staff in situations of difficulty, either in their personal life, if they decided to disclose, or in work nature and environment. The purpose is to help the employee and encourage them to pass the difficulty with fairness and firmness. The Sudanese culture of collegueship has special mechanism of dealing with personal difficulties. Job difficulties are assessed fairly through measurable standards, and action is taken accordingly, making use of the employee, some of their close friends, and family members. If the difficulty is related to substandard performance it would be documented and tallied, and improving the standard via advice and CPD training. Support of some staff members may indicate suspension or termination of offending staff. If this is contemplated a report must be sent to the national Labor Office to approve the action before it is transmitted to the employee, unless immediate suspension is a requirement as stated in the Penalties and Disciplinary Regulations [HR/REG/03]. This is specially so when the presence of an employee implies risks to health, safety, and reputation of himself/herself or other employees or NUSU.

SAFETY IN NUSU

After checking the SAFETY DOCUMENTS in the webpage, please make sure that you know (1) where to get information of Safety for Adverse Events, (2) recognize high risk areas, (3) deal with fire drills and all scares, report incident to the right people, contact first aiders, implement evacuation procedures and lead students to ASSEMBLE POINTS.

DIVERSITY AND EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES

NUSU is committed to equality of opportunities, taking into consideration the diversity of its population of employees as a priority across its academic, service and research activities. The common values should be simplified to the understanding of all involved: teachers, students and other employees, that people are equal, should be treated equally, and the diversity is strength to NUSU and a credit for its members. Activities run through inequality should be reported immediately to the President of NUSU. Discrimination, prejudice and harassment on whatsoever bases are unlawful and absolutely forbidden, and departments or individuals involved in any event will render themselves to disciplinary actions.

The members of NUSU will be given all the best possible opportunities to show their merits and talents and present their valuable contributions to their own success and the NUSU mission. Everybody, whatever their background, are valuable employees, students and customers.

The ultimate aim of this policy is to avail a positive environment of respect and group approach to any problem and practice, and incorporate these values in the minds of every graduate to be practiced by she/she when they hold jobs later.

A staff member has the responsibility of helping explain the discrimination policy to students and observe its implementation

STAFF DIGNITY AND PERSONAL DATA

All members are treated with respect and dignity and prevented from unfair discrimination. This involves dealing with bullying and harassment with firmness. Such practices are unacceptable and will be considered as serious offenses and managed with energy and sensitivity. Dignity includes having the freedom to disagree and present alternative views, to be consulted in their job, and their effort recognized and appreciated. The culture of respect of dignity will be emphasized in all documents and meetings of NUSU.

Although NUSU is obliged by the Ministry of Higher Education, Medical Council, and other accreditation bodies and pension schemes to disclose data on members of staff relating to their qualifications, job title and responsibilities, your data regarding basic biographical details, employment, disciplinary history, awards and others will be kept in records inaccessible except for entities or individuals authorized by law. NUSU will not be responsible for any unauthorized disclosure committed by a third party.

STAFF DEVELOPMENT

NUSU offers opportunities for the staff to acquire and develop newer and up-to-date knowledge, skills and attitudes. The Centre for Professional Development (CPD) distributes forms for assessment of training needs of the staff, particularly in areas of educational theories, IT, instructional techniques, evaluation, professionalism, communication skills, research methods, interviewing skills, internationalization, first aid, accountability to community... etc. A short list of needs will be published and implemented using expert staff from within NUSU or from other universities, nationally or internationally.

Each member, through appraisal results, students' opinion or clients' complaint reports, who seems to have gaps in their job requirements, may seek help by proposing to attend a workshop. No staff member should miss an opportunity of attending workshops to bridge gaps which have been identified in her/his records. Workshops on assessment are a must for every member to attend, because of its implications on students' rights and performance. Staff members particularly inefficient in designing multiple choice questions and other assessment formats will not have a smooth career in this institution.

Workshops and conferences outside NUSU, in the Sudan or abroad are encouraged and supported.

COMPLAINS, DISSATISFACTION AND GRIEVANCE

Fair and prompt settlement of employee's complaints, dissatisfaction and grievance is the responsibility of NUSU. The "open-door management" (see below) allows any employee to enter and complain verbally if they cannot write down, for any reason. Verbal settlement and quick solutions may be possible at the first encounter. Complicated problems need formal hearing procedures, documentation, committees and detailed responses and directives. Every staff member will be listened to and the decision taken is not the end of the story unless the member is satisfied. Complaints related to discrimination, bullying, harassment and misconduct should be brought to the attention of the President or Vice-President immediately. It is the choice of the employee if they chose to use the legal system before asking the administration, and in this case the college's opinion will wait until a rule is issued by the court.

OPEN-DOOR ADMINISTRATION

The President's office, and all other offices of NUSU accordingly, are open for customers, clients, students, and primarily staff members to enter anytime, except when meetings are on. No doors should be looked in the face of any customer or client, including students, except for: (1) individual privacy, and (2) protection of information that has to remain undisclosed such as examinations, results, appraisal forms or classified documents with legal implications on disclosure.

HANDLING OF CLASSIFIED MATERIAL

Apart from disclosure of information in public interest as stated by the law, which should be done after informing the top administration particularly those related to malpractice and impropriety, an employee is not allowed to disclose any of the following: (1) examinations not yet held, or those which should not be disclosed even after being held, (2) results of students to any non-authorized individual or institution, (3) issues related to the academic freedom of faculty members, (4) research findings not yet published, or those which are classified by the sponsoring body (not be disclosed), (5) results of offence investigations, except to the authorized administrator or persons of law.

STAFF APPRAISAL

Staff Appraisal Form [HR/FR/20] is distributed on annual intervals for managerial staff, and academic staff, to be filled by the head of the unit and Dean. Student evaluation for each course and staff is archived and used to compare with the appraisal. CLASSROOM OBSERVATION [SAA-FR-14] is a third criterion for appraisal. All results are discussed with the Principal, Vice-President and President, to ensure that special efforts are appreciated and rewarded and obvious failures are corrected and prevented. In all cases the staff member will be notified. Not up to standard members are helped along for improvement through advice and training. Refusal of corrective action is an indication for fair disciplinary action.

PERSONAL RELATIONS

Any form of human relationship developing between an employee and another, or between an employee and a student has to be based on the professional standards of conduct to safeguard the interest of both. This includes full-time as well as part-time employees and students. The university encourages professional relationships between staff members and students since this is important for their development, but should not affect negatively the duties and responsibilities of the staff member, or result in abuse or exploitation.

Any relationship between a staff member or other employee and a student that can be described as "consensual or romantic" should be declared to their managers and special arrangements should be taken to avoid any undue disclosure of ideas or material.

There is no law that prevents staff members or students to choose a live partner from the college environment but this should not affect any of the principles of the University and the partners are advised to notify the administration. This is specially so when they are in the same office or when one is responsible of the other (e.g. teacher and student).

THE USE OF INTERNET AND SOCIAL MEDIA

It is categorically forbidden to make a statement to the media, verbal or written, on any issue concerning NUSU without permission, except in reporting non-restricted research data reached by the researcher(s).

Defamation of NUSU is an offence. A staff member is free to use the legal path to get her/his rights from NUSU. NUSU has the right to pursue legal channels against any member who defames it or any number of its employees.

It is important to be cautious in dealing with IT since the university cannot claim security of its sites or of its partners, and the staff member should take utmost care against intruders into his personal accounts, firewalls or privacy.

NUSU has disciplinary actions for the improper use of IT. Responsible use of e-mails and internet requires observing unacceptability which can be summarized as: (1) intellectual property infringements, of all kinds, particularly storage of pirated software, and alleging ownership of teaching material (2) unauthorized advertising, marketing or commercial activities not in their mandate of job description, (3) attempt to break in others privacy, websites with the purpose of sabotage, modifications or any non-ethical behavior, (4) viewing, retention or distribution of obscene, pornographic or insulting material, (5) harassing, exploitation or annoyance of others, (6) using the IDs and passwords of others to get access not entitled to.

The university will block sites and e-mail accounts following complains of unacceptable behavior. The university will cooperate with interrogation authorities, police or other security personnel involved in following crimes of misconduct, drug or human travelling, terrorism or harassment.

RESEARCH AND SCHOLARLY ACTIVITIES

It is important to note that the survival of each academic staff with NUSU is based on their ability to teach, publish and have a social accountability. Publication scores very high in teaching staff appraisal and the opposite is also true. NUSU awards those who publish financially and support them to attend conferences and workshops, both nationally and internationally.

The academic research community, worldwide, has a code of acceptable research practice. Unacceptable practice includes: (1) plagiarism, (2) fabrication, (3) ignoring harm inflicted by research to subjects, patients, animals or environment, (4) disclosure of classified or restricted information or findings, without permission of the relevant authorities.

EXTERNAL EXAMINERS

POLICY & PROCEDURES [NUSU-EPPP]

INTRODUCTION

Among the various ways used by universities to check on their standards and conformity, is the annual monitoring offered by external examiners' reports on the educational process and outcomes. NUSU responds to comments of the examiners on awards, progression of students, instruction and assessment practice. The term "External Examiner" refers to the scholar appointed by the university for specific subject or discipline in the undergraduate or postgraduate taught modules. It refers as well to those appointed to review research theses and approve the award of graduate degrees. The "Examiners POOL" is the list of potential external examiners approved by the university authorities. "Selected Examiners" are those picked up from the POOL and notified for specific examinations.

OBJECTIVES OF NUSU-EPPP

The objective of this policy is to describe the regulations and procedures of: (1) appointment of examiners, (2) notification process, (3) roles and rights of the external examiner, (4) actions taken by NUSU in response to the external examiners' reports, and (5) remuneration methods.

1. APPOINTMENT OF EXTERNAL EXAMINERS

The process of selection of an examiner at NUSU is as follows:

- 1.1. Each Dean submits a list of potential undergraduate and postgraduate external examiners to the Scientific Council (SC) through the Education Committee (EC) to build up an approved POOL of external examiners.
- 1.2. The list ranges from 10-30 examiners from each faculty to cover all subjects of the final award of undergraduate students.
- 1.3. The approved list is reviewed and revised annually by both the Dean and the SC.
- 1.4. Examiners are selected from the approved list; in exceptional cases the President of NUSU may appoint an alternative not originally in the list.
- 1.5. Nominated examiners should be known for and show evidence of:
 - 1.1.1. Familiarity, knowledge and understanding of the academic documents of NUSU, particularly Academic Regulations, Learning, Teaching and Assessment Policy, and External Examiners Policy and Practice.
 - 1.1.2. Relevant qualifications, breadth of experience, credibility and competence in the field appointed for.
 - 1.1.3. Minimum academic status of "Assistant Professor", or practice at the level of "Consultant" in the field of examination subject, together with educational aspects of assessment and progression.

PLAGIARISM POLICY

Introduction

The National University-Sudan (NUSU) recognizes that plagiarism by academic staff or students in the preparation of assignments, practical reports and research projects is a longstanding problem. This problem has been aggravated by the ease of access to information from the Internet and by a lack of understanding of staff and/or students about the proper use of efforts of others in an academic context.

The National University-Sudan measures itself against the highest international standards of academic and professional practice. Therefore, the university is committed to developing high standards of academic integrity among its staff and students, and safeguarding the standards of its academic awards to individuals to meet the accepted international ethical and professional levels.

This policy is a statement clarifying the acceptable conduct in academic practice in the university according to the University Academic Regulation (No.12-1).

The policy applies to academic staff, undergraduate and postgraduate students at the university.

Objectives of the policy

This policy is intended to:

- Define plagiarism and other forms of acceptable academic conduct.
- State what is considered as plagiarism.
- Provide guidelines for penalties of plagiarism conducted by students.
- Establish a platform that faculties can use for teaching professional academic practice and encourage adoption of values of academic integrity.

The policy

1. Definitions

- 1.1 Academic integrity: a set of values which form the foundation of academic practice in the university. The core values of academic integrity include: honesty, respect, fairness and responsibility.
 - 1.2 Academic misconduct means breaking the rules of academic integrity
 - 1.3 Plagiarism: the presentation of ideas, material, or scholarship sourced from the work of another individual, group or entity - or from the student's own work previously submitted for assessment - without sufficient acknowledgement of the source. Plagiarism can be intentional or non intentional.
 - 1.4 Collusion: the process whereby two or more students work together – without official approval – and share ideas, solutions or material in work submitted for assessment.
 - 1.5 Cheating: failure to comply with the rules of closed assessments e.g. unauthorized access to materials in a closed assessment (exam/test settings).

1.6 Commission and incorporation: to include material in work submitted for assessment that has been improved by, or commissioned, purchased or obtained from, a third party e.g. family members, essay mills or other students not taking the same assessment.

According to the above, it is considered an offence for any individual (staff or student) to:

- a. Claim or submit the academic work of another as one's own.
- b. Use unacknowledged information downloaded from the internet or other sources as one's own.
- c. Complete or attempt to complete any assignment or examination for another individual without proper authorization.
- d. Allow any examination or assignment to be completed for oneself, in part or in total, by another without proper authorization.
- e. Fabricate or falsify data or results.
- f. Alter, tamper with, destroy or otherwise interfere with the research, resources, or other academic work of another person.
- g. Obtain, provide, accept or use any materials containing questions or answers to any examination or assignment without proper authorization.

2. Role of faculties

Faculties and educational departments are required to:

- 2.1 Educate students –both undergraduates and postgraduates–about the principles of academic writing, the correct use of academic resources and citation. These should be explicitly included in each programme at different levels. Principles of academic integrity should be stressed. The nature of plagiarism should be explained together with the penalties for such an offence. In the first year, this can be included in courses teaching basic learning skills and basics of research. In the following years, the message can be re-enforced in every research course, professionalism courses and courses requiring submission of a thesis or report.
- 2.2 The student's guideline book should include clear information about plagiarism and the consequent disciplinary actions. Departments should make sure that students fully understand the seriousness of the issue.
- 2.3 Departments may wish to use a declaration form to be signed by the student stating that the submitted work is their own.
- 2.4 Departments and faculties may wish to agree on a chosen referencing and citation system for all required academic written work.
- 2.5 Instructors should receive training regarding teaching and guiding students to avoid plagiarism.
- 2.6 Instructors should be trained to recognize plagiarism and deal with the issue as stated in the university academic regulations and academic penalties.
- 2.7 The university would use reliable software for detection of plagiarism. Training for the use of such programme should be provided.

- 2.8 Posters explaining, to the students, the consequences of committing plagiarism would be placed in appropriate places. e.g library , reading rooms and departments.
- 2.9 Cases of plagiarism would be handled by a committee of experts as stated in the university academic regulations.

3. Penalties

After a hearing session, the designated committee can decide on the appropriate penalty for the individual who committed plagiarism or other forms of academic misconduct. According to the committed offence, penalties can be one or more of the following:

- A written warning that requires a signed statement by the student that he will refrain from such act in the future. This will be kept in the student's file.
- Down grading the submitted work.
- Failing the assignment or exam.
- Suspension from the University for a Period decided by the academic council. In this case, a financial penalty may be added.
- Expulsion from university.
- The academic council should approve the punishment.
- At the discretion of the academic council, the names of offending students and the disciplinary action may be announced on the main university board.
- Members of staff who commit the act of plagiarism will stand before a disciplinary committee chaired by the vice-president of the university. Members of the committee include dean of the faculty, dean of research and graduate studies and the legal advisor.
